Unemployment: Where do I start?

There are many life challenges that are addressed in this guide, but one of the most prevalent that we as a society are facing is increased unemployment. When an individual's job is lost there are many emotions that can emerge. Our country is experiencing tremendous change that no one can control.

The first thing to remember is that you are not alone! It is important to understand that you are still a valued member of the community.

Recommendations for Financial Obligations

1. Notify your mortgage holder that you are on a lay-off. If you are unable to meet mortgage payments, request a postponement or reduction of payments until you return to work.
2. If you rent, inform your landlord of your situation. Again, if you are unable to pay your rent, ask your landlord to postpone or lower your payments until you return to work.
3. All utilities (phone, gas, electric, and water) should be notified that you are on a layoff. In most cases, payment arrangements can be made if you explain your situation.
4. If you have any accounts with department stores or other creditors (loans, credit cards, medical bills, etc.) you should notify them immediately. Creditors may ask you to pay a small payment each week, month, etc. If this is the case, you are strongly urged to comply with their request. One of the worst things you can do is not live up to the agreements set forth.
5. If you are paying child support or alimony make sure you contact the judge, domestic relations office, or court that issued the decree and inform them about the situation.
